THE WINNER OF THE 2008 US MASTERS IN CRANS-MONTANA

The excellent cast of players for the 2009 Omega European Masters (3-6 September) in Crans-Montana has just added a new prestigious name to its long list: Trevor Immelman, the winner of the 2008 US Masters in Augusta. The 30 year old South African is a well established player on the US PGA Tour. He finished in the Top 10 on three different occasions last year. He is, after the legendary Gary Player – his idol – the only South African player to have won the prestigious US Masters. In 2006, Immelman was designated “Rookie of the year” on the American Tour. He has won three tournaments on the PGA European Tour.

The 2009 European Masters would also like to announce the confirmed participation of 28 year old Andres Romero, one of the great talents from Argentina. For the last two years he has been playing on the US PGA Tour. Up to date he has won one tournament in Europe (Deutsche Bank Players Championship 2007) and one in the United States (Zurich Classic 2008). He is not related to Eduardo Romero, who won twice in Crans-Montana (1994 and 2000), but he is, in fact, his mentor.
